SARDINIA IS BLASTED IN 300-PLANE ATTACK

49,000 Idle Today In Akron As Three Plants Shut Down

Ignore War Department Demand for Resumption of Work; Pickets Form Shoulder-to-Shoulder Barricade at Gates

(By The Associated Press)
AKRON, May 25.—Three major rubber companies reported all production ceased today as the number of CIO employees idle in a protest against a war labor board wage decision rose to 49,000, despite a War department demand for resumption of work.

Several hundred pickets forming a shoulder-to-shoulder barricade at three gates to Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.'s No. 1 plant turned back workers employed on the first day shift. Some men were rejected forcibly as others pushed them through the picket line, but there was no violence.

Only plant guards and supervisory employees were permitted to enter. A Goodyear spokesman said 19,000 CIO United Rubber Workers were idle at all its plants, excepting Goodyear Aircraft Corp., a subsidiary not affected by the work stoppage. About 14,000 remained idle for the fourth day at the B. F. Goodrich Co. and 17,000 at the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co.

Idleness became the greatest in the history of Akron's rubber industry a few hours after James P. Mitchell, industrial personnel director of the Army Service Forces, appealed for resumption of production.

The idle factories are normally engaged in production of such war materials as gas masks, barrage balloons, life belts, airplane deicers, tank treads, anti-aircraft guns and machine gun clips in addition to all types of combat and civilian tires. Mitchell dispatched a telegram to Sherman H. Dalrymple, international URW president, who was in Washington for conferences with the War Labor board. Contents of the wire were made public by international URW officials here.

"The stoppage of production of several plants in Akron in violation of your no-strike agreement has caused grave concern to the war department," Mitchell stated. "The product manufactured at these plants are highly essential and every moment lost jeopardizes the health and safety of our armed forces. It is your patriotic obligation to continue production without interruption and to resolve any disputes by recourse to the civilian agencies established for such purposes. Unless there is immediate return to full production, we can only conclude that neither your agreement nor the welfare of our armed forces is of any importance to the United Rubber Workers union."

After several minor scuffles yesterday between workers and pickets at entrance to Goodyear plants, the executive board of the Goodyear local advised its members not to try to force the picket lines. In a statement the board reiterated its desire for a continuance of production, but advised its members "not to force their way into the plants."

Strengthen Defenses

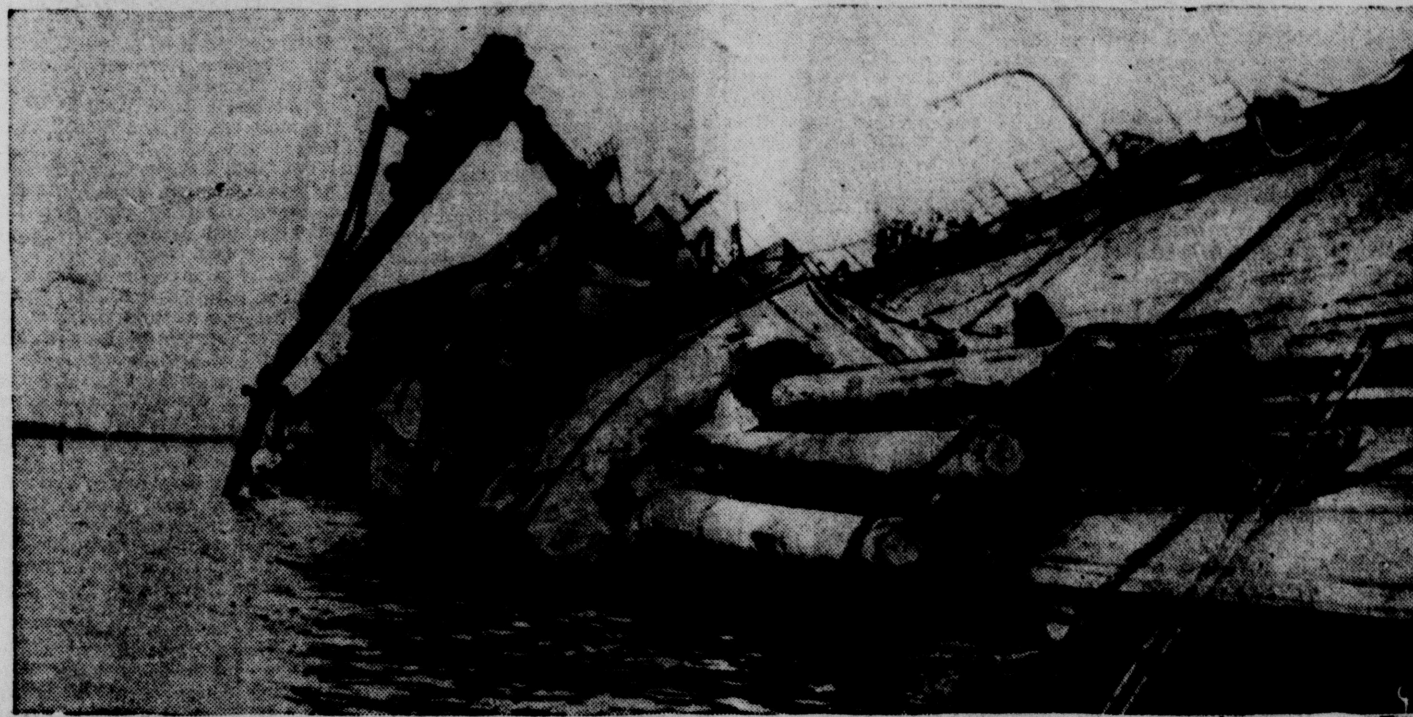

STOCKHOLM, May 25.—German, alive to the possibility of an Allied invasion through Norway, is hurriedly strengthening coastal fortifications, reports from usually reliable Norwegian sources said today.

Two hundred thousand German troops are guarding this possible gateway to Europe, including many marine units responsible for vital coast defenses, these reports said. Discontent among German soldiers in northern Norway, meanwhile, was reported to have resulted in many desertions and four prisoners were said to have been established for offenders.

Stricken Ships Of Pearl Harbor Rise From Watery Grave To Wreak Revenge On Jap 'Sneaks' Who Put Them There

OUT OF THE MURKY WATERS OF Pearl Harbor, scene of Japan's infamous and ill-starred stab-in-the-back attack, come three more United States battleships, their wounds healed or rapidly healing. Top photo shows the battleship Oklahoma, which had been capsized, being righted, five of her 14-inch guns appearing above the waterline for the first time since the "Day of Infamy," Dec. 7, 1941.

NAME SPEAKERS FOR GRADUATION

Graduates Preparing Program For Exercises June 10

Selection of four student speakers for the Salem High school commencement exercises Thursday evening, June 10, was announced today by Supt. E. S. Kerr.

The graduation program itself will follow a patriotic theme. Three girls and a boy will give short orations which will feature the graduation rites. They are: Mary Byers, Emma Bauman, Elizabeth Benedetti and Herbert Hansell.

Music soloists will be Gene McArthur, Mabel Hostetler and Dorothy Haldi.

One hundred and seventy-eight seniors are in line to receive diplomas.

The commencement will follow the annual baccalaureate service Sunday evening, June 6, when Rev. John Bauman will speak.

Mary Byers is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Guy E. Byers, E. State st.; Emma Bauman, the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. John Bauman, N. Union ave.; Elizabeth Benedetti, daughter of Mrs. A. A. Volio, Columbia st.; Herbert Hansell, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Hansell, E. State st. Of the music soloists, Gene McArthur is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perry McArthur, S. Lincoln ave.; Mabel Hostetler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Hostetler, W. Seventh st.; and Dorothy Haldi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Haldi, Franklin st.

J. F. VOTAW, 65, DIES IN ALLIANCE FALL

Joseph Francis Votaw, 65, of Guilford, a retired salesman for the International Harvester Co., died at 1:45 a. m. today in the Alliance City hospital as the result of a fractured skull received in a fall yesterday afternoon.

The fall occurred at the Alliance sewage treatment plant where Mr. Votaw, working for the Broomall Construction Co. of Salem, was helping to erect a temporary platform prior to making repairs. Mr. Votaw lost his balance and fell 18 feet to the floor, it was reported.

A life resident of this vicinity, he was born July 14, 1877, at the old Votaw homestead at Guilford, the son of Elmore W. and Mary Catherine Votaw. The homestead, in the family more than 100 years, also was the place of his father's birth.

As a salesman for the Harvester Co., he lived at Atwater and Ravenna for a number of years. He was employed by the company 30 years. He was a member of the Atwater Methodist church, the Masons and Sons of Veterans in Salem.

His wife, Edith Wolfe Votaw, died 13 years ago.

Surviving are two sons, Robert Votaw of Syracuse, N. Y., Glen of Cleveland; one grandson, Bruce; three sisters, Mrs. Elmer Wehner of Chester, W. Va., Mrs. Frank Getz of Pasadena, Calif., Miss Alice Votaw, at home, and a brother, George E. Votaw of Salem. The late J. E. Votaw of Salem was a brother-in-law.

The body is at the Arbaugh-Pearce funeral home. Arrangements have not been completed.

STRANGE DETAILS OF SINKING TOLD

Columbiana Man Is One of Two Killed By German Torpedo

Strange details of the recent merchant ship sinking in which William Henry Magill, 25, of Columbiana, lost his life, were disclosed today by the government after survivors of the lost vessel reached Norfolk, Va., yesterday.

Seaman Magill, son of Mrs. Alice Magill, had been in the merchant marine five months. The story, released at Norfolk, said that while a United States patrol plane circled directly overhead, an Axis submarine torpedoed and sank a Panamanian merchant ship in a daylight attack off the United States east coast early in May, according to survivors of the lost vessel.

Capt. Jorgen Knudsen of Svendborg, master of the ship, told newsmen the plane did not drop depth charges, although eight minutes elapsed between the firing of two torpedoes of the submersible, which did not surface.

Chief Engineer Nils Wirstrom, 25, of New Orleans, said two members of the ship's company of 51 were killed when the first torpedo struck the engine room. He said they were Third Assistant Engineer Knut Blumgren, of Norway, and William Magill, a wiper, of Columbiana, O.

Magill was making his first boat trip abroad at the time, according to his mother. A graduate of Columbiana High school in 1938, he has a brother, Norman, in the army somewhere in the Pacific. Also surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Richard Bowling of Columbiana, and Mrs. Eric Gundrup of Bay Village.

Speeder Is Fined

Vernon Blaker, 36, of Waynesburg, Pa., arrested by the Salem state highway patrol on a charge of speeding, drew a fine of $25 and costs in Justice Norman Wolfgang's court at North Lima yesterday.

Paul W. Shaw, 18, of Negley, charged by the patrol with reckless driving, was fined $15 and costs by Justice Earl Spalding at East Palestine.

Watch Those Lights Tonight! Blackout Hour Still Secret

It'll Be Sometime Between 9 and 11; Cooperation Is Asked by Civilian Defense Chief

Eleven northern Ohio counties, including Columbiana and Mahoning, where some of the nation's most productive war industries are situated, black out tonight in another air raid defense rehearsal.

When the first alert—a steady blast by siren—will be sounded is a secret, but it is expected between 9 and 11 p. m. (Eastern War Time). A state proclamation has specified the test must begin after dark and must be over by 11.

Salem residents are reminded by Fire Chief Vincent Malloy to be sure all lights are extinguished if the family will be away for the evening.

He asks that citizens cooperate in making the blackout a success by turning off lights, or blacking out,

Cox Is Unwelcome, Says School Board

A request that Marion A. Cox stay away from the High school where his wife, Ella Thea, is a teacher, was made by members of the board of education during a meeting Monday night.

In directing their appeal to Supt. of Schools E. S. Kerr, board members complained of Cox's appearance at the Freshman-Sophomore party in the high school gymnasium last Friday evening.

Several of the board members referred to his association with the students as a bad influence, particularly to boys who, themselves, will ultimately be called for service.

Cox, who refused to report for induction Dec. 4, recently was sentenced to four years in prison by Federal Judge Emrich B. Freed in Cleveland following a federal grand jury indictment.

The court granted Cox an opportunity to join the army, but the Salem man was rejected for physical disability earlier this month. It is understood, however that his case has not been definitely closed yet.

CHINA IS FACING CHUNGKING THREAT

Japs Out To Consolidate Important Territory Along Yangtze

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Intensification of the Japanese military operations in the area of the strategic port of Ichang on the Yangtze river appears to hold unpleasant potentialities.

Observers in Chungking figure that the Japs certainly are out to consolidate important territory along the great Yangtze, and perhaps to make a drive against the Chinese provisional capital itself. In either event, rich agricultural provinces—vital to the maintenance of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's regime—would be at stake.

The Japanese early this year threatened to go all-out to smash Chungking and knock General Chiang out of the war. Whether this is the inauguration of such a campaign remains to be seen. It hasn't gone far enough yet to warrant us in assuming that the Chungking area is involved.

Would Imperil Resources
However, it's a harsh fact that should the Japanese succeed in capturing the capital, and in overrunning the provinces of Hunan and Szechwan, with their wealth of rice and other vital resources, it would place a terrific strain of unpredictable effect on the already hard-pressed Chinese.

The Japanese early this year threatened to go all-out to smash Chungking and knock General Chiang out of the war. Whether this is the inauguration of such a campaign remains to be seen. It hasn't gone far enough yet to warrant us in assuming that the Chungking area is involved.

ENSIGN IS KILLED AS PLANE CRASHES

Earl R. (Sonny) Shisler, 21, Victim of Accident In California

Ensign Earl R. (Sonny) Shisler, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl R. Shisler of Corpus Christi, Texas, formerly of Salem, was killed in an airplane accident in California yesterday, according to word received by relatives here.

Details of the mishap were not given. Funeral service will be held at Corpus Christi.

An only son, Ensign Shisler received his "wings" at the Corpus Christi naval air station last Dec. 31. His preliminary training was received at the Dallas, Texas, reserve base.

The pilot was a graduate of Corpus Christi High school and Junior college, Texas.

Ensign Shisler was a nephew of Harold Shisler, 1475 S. Lincoln ave., and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stratton, 347 N. Elsworth ave., and a grandson of Jesse Shisler, R. D., Leetonia.

Merciless Storm Of Bombs Dropped On Italian Island

Docks, Shipping, Airfields Suffer; Bomb-Dazed Refugees Fleeing North; Cagliari, Sardinian Capital, Reported Abandoned

(By The Associated Press)
ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, May 25.—The Allies bludgeoned the Italian island of Sardinia with their big stick—their air power—yesterday, sending more than 300 American planes to attack nine important defense targets on that stepping stone to Italy.

Bomb-pitted Pantelleria, the little fortified island 45 miles off Cap Bon which was under almost continuous attack much of Sunday and Sunday night was raided again Monday by American fighter bombers in the steady air offensive against the Axis' southern front.

Twelve enemy aircraft were destroyed in combat during these operations of the past 24 hours, and it was officially stated that an unestimated number of others were wrecked on the ground.

(This brought the number of destroyed Axis aircraft in the last six days to at least 329 as a result of operations by the Northwest African, Cairo and Malta Air Forces.)

SCHOOL PROGRAM MAY BE CURTAILED

Reduction In Costs Sought So Teachers May Be Given Increase

Possible curtailment of certain extra-curricular activities at Salem High school, as a means of curbing expenditures, was discussed by school board members in a round-table session Monday night.

Board members, hoping to arrive at some plan whereby teachers can be given wage increases to offset living cost rises, discussed conditions in general in a lengthy session which lasted until midnight. Teacher appointments for the 1943-44 school term will be made when the board holds its regular meeting Monday night, June 7.

A group representing the executive committee of the Salem Teachers association met with most of the school board members one day last week to file a formal request for salary adjustments.

Last night's session followed a dinner, served in the home economics room, for school board members, school principals and supervisors.

Consistent Rain Delays Planting

Persistent drizzling and lack of sunshine have delayed crop planting a month to six weeks and a late fall will be necessary to assure anything like a normal harvest, L. H. Copeland of Millport and C. F. Minding of Columbus, say.

Minding, chief of the department of agriculture bureau at Columbus, came to Columbiana county to confer with Copeland, cooperative weather observer at Millport, on weather and crop conditions.

Copeland's report shows only two clear days in the district so far this month. While there has been an abundance of showers and rainfall is only about normal, but rains have been so frequent that farmers have been unable to do much outside work, Copeland points out.

Main streams in the district are only slightly above normal, but large amounts of water are being impounded by Lake Milton and the newly erected Berlin dam on the Mahoning river.

The end of the present weather is not in sight, Minding told Copeland.

Sunshine of only 20 per cent has retarded drying of the soil in order that farmers might do outdoor work.

Hit OPA Methods

TOLEDO, May 25.—Carrying placards criticizing price control methods, about 200 CIO members staged a demonstration in front of the local Office of Price Administration yesterday. A CIO official said it was in protest against the "freeing of wages and the failure of OPA to hold prices down." The demonstration occurred 16 minutes after the OPA offices closed for the day.

Waves of Flying Fortresses, Marauders, Mitchells, Lightnings and Warhawks roared over Sardinia where German troops were announced yesterday by Berlin to have landed. The planes unleashed a merciless storm of bombs and dealt their heaviest blows to this vital Axis base west of the Italian mainland.

Docks, shipping and airfields suffered heavily. One supply ship exploded, four small vessels were sunk and seven others damaged by the cascade of bomb hits.

The Americans lost only three planes during the Sardinian sweeps. The present Allied air offensive, unlike the German air force's attempts to neutralize the British fortress island of Malta last year when Marshal Erwin Rommel was pressing toward the Nile, maintained its full striking power with negligible cost, taking full advantage of the Fortresses' ability to carry out high level precision bombing while defending themselves.

Fires visible for 50 miles blazed from Terranova harbor on the northeast coast of Sardinia when the four-engined bombers hit dock installations, warehouses and an ammunition dump. One supply ship was blown up there, another burst into flames, and a third was badly smashed.

Thousands of bomb-dazed refugees were reported fleeing north from southern Italy and from islands in the Mediterranean today as American warplanes, "sowing bombs like wheat," heaped fresh destruction on Sardinia, Sicily, Pantelleria and the Italian mainland.

Reports reaching Switzerland said an exodus was under way from many towns on the coast of the Italian boot, with Rom already receiving thousands attempting to escape Allied bombardment.

A Rome broadcast admitted that "city districts proper" at Cagliari, capital of Sardinia island, had been abandoned as a result of the violent Allied aerial offensive.

With Allied planes stepping up the fury of their assault on the "invasion trail" into southern Europe, Italy's Crown Prince Umberto was quoted by the British radio as warning Italians that they were short of arms and must throw all their "spiritual and physical strength" in the struggle.

Premier Mussolini was said to have urged party chiefs of the Rome district to last night and given them new orders, presumably dealing with measures to combat an Allied invasion.

HOLLAND ENTERS PLEA OF INSANITY

LISBON, May 25.—Plans for a speedy trial for Francis Manley Holland, 42-year-old East Liverpool Negro, on charges of first degree murder, received a temporary setback Monday afternoon, when an additional plea of "not guilty by reason of insanity" was entered by Holland through his counsel, Attorney Jacob Brookes, Jr., and Donald Shays.

Judge Joel H. Sharp expects to commit the defendant to the Massillon State hospital for a period of observation as soon as arrangements can be made, and the trial of the case will depend upon the report of Dr. A. G. Hyde, psychiatrist at the institution.

Meanwhile, following the arraignment before Judge Sharp Monday morning, Holland sat calmly by, an interested spectator, while the names of 15 prospective jurors were drawn to serve as a murder panel.

Holland is charged with the fatal shooting of Miss Phyllis Ann Peschy, 22, as she walked home from church with her family.

HOME TO ROOST

There is now a revival of hope that combined British and United States air operations against Germany may decide the outcome of the conflict, with land operations finally confirming a defeat already accomplished by Allied air power and the effect of the prolonged, costly struggle against Russia.

Whether or not this hope is proved justifiable by events yet to come, there no longer can be any doubt that Germany and Italy now know the extent of the fury they loosed with their own selection of air power as the weapon most likely to produce the quick victory they sought. The chickens have come home to roost—with 2,000-pound bombs.

While the Germans may be expected to hold resentment, just as they held it after World War I when the naval blockade weapon was turned against them with disastrous results, they can blame no one but themselves. They showed the possibilities of aerial bombing as long ago as World War I, when they tried to subdue the English with zeppelins and planes. They built their expectations of victory in this war on air power. They proved in Poland, the low countries, France, Yugoslavia and Greece that it was everything they claimed for it. They jarred the British out of their complacency and they hastened the development of the United States as the world's largest producer of war planes.

Everything they sought to demonstrate at the expense of their enemies now is being demonstrated at their expense, instead. When they have had their lesson, the Japanese will have theirs. The three Axis powers made the tragic mistake of starting something they weren't able to finish.

OPA IS THE GOAT

The intensity of the critical bombardment of OPA from all sides marks it as the goat for failure of a policy in which it never represented more than a detail of enforcement.

It is being blamed for not doing something that was impossible from the beginning. The techniques it has been struggling with were doomed to be disappointing not because of their inherent faults, but because they were opposed to forces too strong for them to resist.

Organized labor, which is taking the initiative in criticizing price control for not controlling prices absolutely, has been first and foremost to contribute to the major cause of rising living costs—higher wage rates. Sometimes it looks as though the spokesmen for organized labor actually believed in repressing inflation for every minority in the country, except organized labor. Spokesmen for organized farmers have seemed to share that viewpoint on occasions—that only farmers were entitled to an inflationary joy ride.

Government, committed to a policy of holding down living costs, never has been willing to make a clean break with its conflicting policy of boosting the national income—a carry-over from the depression. OPA was given an assignment that could not be performed without a fundamental alteration of direction that never was made; that isn't being made now. There may be some satisfaction in destroying the OPA goat, but a goat by any other name is going to be handed the same impossible assignment.

STRATEGIC BOMBING

Aerial bombing, which began in World War I with Germans potting explosives blindly out of airships over England, sometimes blocked from the sight of their targets by clouds, and reached its climax in this war with Germany's attempt to destroy whole areas of London with mass flights of bombing planes, is still developing as a military art.

Selection of dams as critical targets and the reports of successful operations against dams in Germany and more recently in Sardinia suggests that the precision school of bombing may be gaining the ascendancy. One breach in a spillway, caused perhaps by one large bomb or mine, is a heavier blow than was struck by the tons of bombs dropped, for instance, on the "old city" during the London raids.

While power stations, railroad junctions and telephone exchanges always have been desirable targets, the recent attacks on dams is an indication that tactics may be in process of development to make aerial bombing so highly selective that 500 well-placed missiles could cripple a whole nation's war effort.

NUTRITIONAL GOALS

One of the items that has leaked out of that closely censored food conference at Hot Springs is agreement of the delegates on seeing that their countries' populations are better fed in the post-war world. To help in this worthy project, nutritional goals are going to be established.

This is an early bid for adoption by whatever committee sets the standard for the United States of a rule that after the war coffee shall not be made without coffee, nor shall beef stew be made without beef. While the subject is open, let there also be a rule against serving iced tea without ice, mashed potatoes that are not mashed and creamed chicken without chicken.

There are minor points, perhaps, but who will deny that in the post-war world, as in the pre-war world, they won't be the cause of more distress than the absence of a plentiful supply of leafy green vegetables, which is what we are afraid the nutrition experts are getting ready to stuff down our throats.

COMMUNIQUE WILL NEVER SEE

United States Headquarters: Operations in this theater came to a standstill today when groups of combat soldiers and technicians suspended activities, declaring they would do no further fighting until their pay had been distributed. A spokesman for the general in command of the area explained that the chest containing the pay had been lost when sailors on a destroyer refused to stand watch because their grievance over hours and working conditions had not been acted upon. While they were idle, an enemy submarine sank the ship. Conciliators are being rushed to this point to try to persuade the men to go back to fighting pending solution of their difficulties.

Seriously, though, it must sound something like that to the men on the treacherous rocks of Attu, in the humid jungles of the South Pacific islands and the airfields of England when they learn that back home the same thing is happening.

LOSS OF VITAMINS IS SMALL

Dr. Clendening Discusses Canned Foods

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
IN AN article published in this column several months ago, I commented on the effect of canning on the vitamin content of various fruits and vegetables, and stated that in many factories the methods used destroyed a good deal of the vitamin C. The American Can company has written me that they do not consider this a fair statement and I am happy to modify it and bring it down to date.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

It should be said at the beginning that canning or preserving foods does not detract from their nutritive value in respect to the amount of energy-producing food elements—starches, sugars and fats—or the tissue-building elements—proteins. Nor are vitamins A, D or E affected by heat. Only part of the vitamin B is affected. So these elements are retained no matter how careless the preserving is.

Preserving Vitamins
Vitamin C is unstable in the presence of heat, but if cooked in vacuum, this loss is prevented. I am informed by the American Can company that commercial canneries, both large and small, have quite universally adopted scientific methods which preserve the heat labile B and C vitamins.

The commercial preparations are likely to be higher in vitamin content than foods preserved by home methods.

In restaurants where cooked vegetables are kept hot for considerable periods the loss of vitamin C is likely to be considerable, and there is loss when cooked vegetables are allowed to stand at room temperature. All canned goods suffer some loss when stored at temperatures of 70 degrees to 80 degrees F. So the old custom of putting them in the nice cool cellar is instinctive science on grandpa's part.

Importance of Juices
In these days when the housewife must make all foods go to the farthest extent, it is well for her to remember that the juices in the can contain significant amounts of vitamins. In a study of a sample lot of canned corn, for instance, the amount of vitamin B in the corn itself was .25 milligrams, while the amount in the can liquid was .33 milligrams, and the amount of vitamin C in the corn was 6 milligrams, while the amount in the can liquid was 8 milligrams.

This certainly points up the lesson that the can liquid should not be discarded since it is a valuable source of the soluble vitamins. The same is true to a certain extent of the water and juice left over from boiling vegetables at home.

Under any circumstances there is no real need to worry too much about the amount of vitamin C you get a day. An orange, a tomato, a grapefruit, a glass of lemonade or limeade will take care of your daily requirement, even if you get only a small amount in your cooked vegetables.

Damascus Church Group Has Supper

DAMASCUS, May 25—Cousages were given to the mothers as favors when the Fellowship supper was held at the Methodist church Thursday evening. Hostesses were Mrs. J. H. Cameron, Mrs. H. E. Stout and Mrs. L. S. Strawn.

The suppers, which will be discontinued during the summer months, will be resumed in the fall. A social time was enjoyed by the group, and the choir held a rehearsal.

Friendship Circle
The hostesses for the next meeting of the Friendship circle Sunday school class of the Methodist church will be Mrs. Alice Bye, Mrs. C. G. Long and Mrs. Philip Court. The event will be held at the church where surgical dressings will be made, previous to the meeting.

Mrs. Lowell Mounts conducted devotions and the group made surgical dressings when they met Wednesday evening.

Routine business was transacted with Mrs. G. R. Morton presiding. Lunch was served by Miss Fay Pyle, Mrs. Olin Shoar and Mrs. Emil Stanley. Guests were Miss Margaret Beck of Salem R. D., Mrs. Thomas Powell and Mrs. Paul Bayless.

Merry Mixers
The members of the Merry Mixers club will be entertained Wednesday, June 9 by Mrs. Thomas Powell. Mothers were special guests when the group met with Mrs. Robert Moore, Wednesday.

In the afternoon, Mrs. Carl Weidmeyer of Berlin Center reviewed the book "The Robe". Two duets were sung by Mrs. John Denny and Mrs. Kenneth Hahlen and two songs were sung by the group. Mrs. Lillburn Coffee conducted the devotionals.

Each guest was presented a corsage. There were 27 present. Guests were Mrs. Fred Schoen and Mrs. Kenneth Hahlen of East Beach, Mrs. William Griffith and Mrs. Andrew Flap and daughter of Beloit, Mrs. Howard Cameron of Westville, Mrs. L. A. Cresser of Lisbon, Mrs. Eagleton of Carrollton, Mrs. L. Starbuck of Salem, Mrs. Irving Hoopes, Mrs. Erba Maddox, Mrs. G. R. Morton, Mrs. Bert Phillips and Miss Velma Schaub.

Fidels Class
Mr. and Mrs. Allen Stanley will entertain the members of the Fidels class of the Friends church, June 18. The entertainment will be in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Headland.

Devotionals were conducted by the hostess when the group met with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Mather Wednesday evening. A letter of thanks from Pvt. David Hilbert of Miami, Fla., for the gift sent him by the class was read by Mrs. Erba Maddox.

Mrs. Allen Stanley had charge of the games. There were 21 present. Lunch was served by Mrs. Mather, assisted by Miss Edna Mather.

Farm Women's Club
The members of the Farm Women's club will be entertained at an afternoon meeting Thursday, June 17, by Mrs. George Meiter.

Dust cloths were made when the group met with Mrs. Herbert Lora Thursday, with 12 members present. Mrs. Velma Meiter was a guest.

East End Club
The East End club will be entertained at the next meeting, June 2 by Mrs. Philip Bush.

Mrs. Loumar Haidet of Alliance was hostess to the group Wednesday afternoon and two guests were present, Mrs. Bessie Noble and Mrs. Walter Allen of Alliance.

Prizes were won by Mrs. Noble and Mrs. Leland Knoedler. Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Mountz recently received a telephone call from their son, Leonard, who has begun flight training at Los Angeles, Calif. He was transferred to Los Angeles from the Marine air field at Santa Anna, Calif., where he was an airplane mechanic. His address is A. V. C. D. T. Aviation Ca-

Washington Round-up

News and Views, Briefly On What's Going On In Capital

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, May 25.—A new gasoline crisis along the industrial Atlantic seaboard yielded so many problems for government officials today that the ever-important issues of taxes, foreign trade, labor controversies and food shortages were thrust into the background of discussion in the capital.

The Office of Defense Transportation, working overtime to keep essential wheels rolling, ordered delivery services cut sharply in the east, effective Thursday morning. Home deliveries of luxuries, including beverages, were prohibited entirely. Truckers were instructed to rearrange their routes to get the most out of their combined efforts.

The ODT said the situation would get worse because the full effect of a six-day halt in pipe line flow from the west, caused by floods, was yet to be felt.

Congress meanwhile tackled a full calendar with indifferent results. Senate Democrats, fearful that the majority party would have to bear the blame if some compromise on pay-as-you-go taxes was not worked out, put on pressure for conferees to report some kind of a bill that would be acceptable to house, senate and the president.

The senate was tangled also with a controversy over foreign trade agreements. Efforts by one faction to give congress the right to nullify pacts after the war collided with apparently strong opposition from the administration which wants a free hand in such negotiations.

The house, embroiled in a new poll tax argument, put off until next week action on the Connally-Smith bill which would outlaw strikes in government-operated plants and give the War-Labor board power of subpoena. The poll tax issue reached the floor despite the vigorous opposition of southern congressmen as the house voted 288 to 110 to discharge from the rules committee a bill abolishing the tax as a voting prerequisite in seven southern states.

PORTLAND, Ore.—Northwest aluminum plants, mainly in the Portland area, now are producing 50 per cent more than the total national output before the war, according to Raymond Miller, engineer.

DEATH GOES NATIVE

By MAX LONG

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE
Dr. Latham, in an unemotional voice, gave his testimony about my shouted threats at Delmar.

The inquest proceeded with, to me, a nightmarish speed and precision. After I told of finding Mrs. Delmar stabbed to death, my knife was introduced as evidence and examined by a visibly impressed jury.

Dr. Latham's description of my wild exodus from the house carrying the broken lamp aroused them further. When I got a chance in the witness chair again, I burst into an explanation of the stealing of the lethal weapons by the murderer, done to implicate me. I couldn't let those simple jurors get too deep an impression of my possible guilt before Komako pulled his rabbit out of the hat. I went on to tell how the murderer had taken away my engine key, thus keeping me a virtual prisoner in Walmaka. I was all set to recount the story of the faked confession and poisoned whiskey, but Sam Ota cut me short.

"We're not trying the case here, Mr. Hoyt. All the coroner's jury needs to decide is that there have been two murders and—"

"But don't we get to say," a small and very rotund jurymen spoke up, "that it looks like Mr. Hoyt done the murders?"

"Listen to the evidence," Ota shouted at him. "If then you all decide it would be good to lock up someone to be tried later in court, you can do that."

"Sure! All right, lock up Mr. Hoyt. His spear, his knife—"

"Silence!" Ota commanded. "You will be asked for your verdict after you have all talked it over. Komako, do you want to say anything?"

Komako emphatically did. He addressed the jury in Hawaiian, and warned up to what I took to be a great oration before Ota grew weary and told him to save the rest for the judge. Ota sent the jury outside, then, to talk it over.

I watched them as the filed out and gathered in a cluster near the hibiscus hedge. I was alarmed because Komako had seemed unable to present the evidence I hoped he might have. Otherwise he would not have allowed the case to go to the jury yet.

The silence which had fallen over the lanai was smashed with the bang of a door somewhere in the house. Then came an outburst of quarreling voices. Everyone on the lanai started out of his seat and looked toward the living room, but the matting curtains concealed whatever was going on. It sounded as if furniture was being overturned. Grunts and screams warned us of a desperate struggle. Komako, the play clutched in his hand, lunged toward the living room, knocking over the table as he went. He reached for the curtain, tripped, and the matting came down over his head.

Above the heaving obstruction of Komako in the doorway we saw the Rawsons—the Rawsons, mind you!—snarling at each other, he shaking her in an iron grip, her face distorted with anger. The veneer of civilization had cracked and fallen off, revealing the most primitive of savages. She was screaming:

"You can't do this! I hate you—you shan't tell it!"

And at the same time he was shouting her down with almost unintelligible bellowing: "Control yourself! I'll not stand it—here, what're you doing?"

Sam Ota was yelling at them, striving to climb over Komako who was getting to his feet in the doorway. Gwen had twisted away from Rawson. Her arm flashed up and there was a knife gleaming in her hand. The crowd surged forward, adding hoarse shouts to the confusion, shouts of warning. There was congestion in the doorway and my vision was obscured for a moment. I fought to get through the press of bodies. Elaine gave way before me, her face whiter than ever, her eyes enormously dilated.

Then I saw the Rawsons again. He had her grasped in one arm while struggling to get the knife from her hand which was raised high in the air. Suddenly he let go and tugged a revolver from his pocket. Instantly her knife plunged down toward his shoulders. She leaped backward, and Rawson fell to the floor with a thud that jarred the house. At the same moment his revolver went off with a deafening roar.

High over everything rose the sound of Elaine's scream. She toppled, grasping at the air, and fell. I caught her and eased her to the floor, but the next instant Dr. Latham thrust me aside and gathered her unconscious form into his arms.

"They've done it now!" he said bitterly. Pandemonium followed the shot. Screaming people made a break to get away. Others rushed towards the Rawsons. Everybody was milling and shouting. I held my ground and was silent, for something had suddenly clicked in my brain: The strange similarity of the quirel and murder I had just witnessed to that of the maid's story of Polly Morgan and Frederick Hawks.

I jumped on a chair and looked over the heads of the people toward the living room. Rawson was on his feet, very much alive, in the hands of Ota and protesting loudly. I did not need to hear Mrs. Rawson, struggling in Thornton's grasp, say: "But it was only acting, you know!" My hunch had been right—they had put on the scene, with Komako's connivance, to force a reaction from Elaine and the Lathams. I waited for nothing more, but dropped down from the chair and hurried to the couch where Elaine was lying, the doctor bending over her.

My business was there. The effect on Elaine of what had just transpired was perhaps going to tell us everything. Her scream and consequent fainting at the sound of the shots were significant, but everything depended on what she would say on regaining consciousness. Dr. Latham glanced up at me and ordered flatly:

"Get my medicine bag—it's on my living room table."

I stepped off the lanai and relayed the order to Henry, who was staring in bewilderment at the hubbub still going on over the Rawsons, then returned to my post beside Elaine.

Behind me Komako's great voice was raised over the tumult of Ota's threatening to take the Rawsons into custody and their excited objections. "Be quiet!" Komako roared. "Be quiet!" Komako roared. "Be quiet!" Komako roared.

Budd was alternately demanding an explanation and squealing Herb for doing likewise. Over all was the excited comment coming from outside among the Hawaiian spectators, sounding like a bunch of mynah birds on the roof at dawn.

But while I heard all this I watched Elaine's unconscious face, waiting for some sign. The doctor counted her pulse, his mouth and eyes grim. Mrs. Latham pushed me away to kneel beside the girl.

She looked pityingly at her son, but said no word. The doctor's eyes never left Elaine's face. His mother produced an old-fashioned green bottle of smelling salts from the pocket of her cotton housedress, and uncorked it under Elaine's nose.

Henry came running with the medicine bag and Dr. Latham asked him for a glass of water. I became aware that the lanai was being cleared of people. Voices still argued, but at some distance. Then Komako came to stand beside the rattan couch, looking down at the girl anxiously.

The doctor released Elaine's limp hand to stir a powder from his kit into the water Henry brought. Mrs. Latham massaged the girl's wrists and stopped now and then to wave the smelling salts in front of her face. Komako sighed in my ear and I knew he was suffering with suspense as I was.

Finally there was a flutter of the bruised lids. The doctor slipped his arm under Elaine's head and lifted her gently, holding the glass to her lips. At last she swallowed and he laid her back. Then the deep blue eyes opened and stared. They were blank. Only for a moment, however. Horror crept into them, she shuddered and tried to struggle up.

"Peter!" she cried weakly, and when the doctor held her down with gentle firmness, she seemed not to recognize him, but said urgently: "You must see to Peter! Oh, go quickly!"

I think we all realized that she was back in her hidden, mysterious past. The shock of seeing the murder reenacted had jolted her memory free of whatever obstruction had clouded it.

"In a minute," the doctor said, and his face was as white as hers. "You must lie still."

She began to cry hopelessly.

"He's dead—I know he's dead—there's blood all over him—" and she almost went out again. The doctor held the glass to her lips, and his hand was shaking.

Komako bent close over her from his great height. "Tell old papa, he said persuasively, 'who is Peter?'"

Her eyes fastened on his kindly brown face with no flicker of recognition. She answered automatically: "My husband."

Dr. Latham drew back, and if ever I saw bleak misery and loneliness descend on a man, I saw it then. He set the glass down on the floor and turned to hide a face that was quivering. I realized then just what we were doing to both of them, and the cruelty of bringing her back to face only horror. I felt that I would rather pay the penalty myself than let it go any further. But now it had to go on.

Komako went on in the same even tone: "And so you kill your husband."

The blue eyes widened. "No.... Yes, maybe it was my fault." She brooded a while and then said faintly, "We'd been quarreling. He was drinking.... I should never have let him drive, even if he struck me. I was a coward...."

The doctor turned back swiftly, watching her, waiting.

Komako said clearly, "You are Polly Morgan."

She rested quietly with closed eyes. Then she said reasonably: "No, you have it wrong. I'm Molly Logan—Peter Logan's wife." With the name, she started up again. "Oh, is he dead? Have you looked? The car went over the bank—"

Komako said firmly: "You was in your room at the hotel—"

"No, We'd left the hotel, but Peter wanted to go to another—and another—like we always did. I wanted to go home—to Mayfield—that's what we were quarreling about...."

She raised her head and looked out into the hot sunshine where tropical blossoms rioted, the thatched roof of the next cottage was visible, and where brown men and women thronged the path. She sank back.

"But this isn't Mayfield! Where am I? Where have you taken Peter?"

LOS ANGELES — When traffic police officers arrived at the scene of an auto accident to check up on the details and make a report, the auto was gone and even the innocent bystanders. They were able to ascertain, however, that it had been an ambulance going full speed, with a patient inside, which had turned over. The two internes jumped out, called on bystanders to help right the auto, took a glance at the patient and were off again at siren-screaming speed without the patient having missed a heartbeat.

Poldy Dur and George Sanders in "They Came to Blow Up America," scheduled at the State, Wednesday only.

"They Came to Blow Up America" is the feature at the State theater Wednesday only. The film, which stars George Sanders and Anna Sten, parallels the actual story of the landing of Nazi agents on the Long Island and Florida coasts, their subsequent arrest by government agents and their execution in the nation's capitol.

The new musical, "Cabin In The Sky," will be at the State Thursday, Friday and Saturday with Ethel Waters, Rochester and Lena Horne featured in the leading roles.

Jean Arthur and Joel McCrea form the romantic twosome in "The More The Merrier," at the State for the last time tonight. The most exciting part of Miss Arthur's life begins when she rents her spare room to Charles Coburn, who then rents half of his room to Joel McCrea.

"Night Plane From Chungking," showing at the Grand tonight and Wednesday, is a strange tale of romance and adventure, with two Americans, an airplane pilot and a Red Cross nurse, as the principal actors. Its locale is that Japan-threatened China lifeline, the tortuous Assam road that winds from Chungking to the borders of India.

A double feature, "Haunted Ranch" and "Taxi, Mister" is scheduled for Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Grand.

The vine of the rattan palm is sometimes 1,000 feet long, a record in the plant world.

Mr. And Mrs. Joseph A. Rich Observe 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Rich of East Fourth st., observed their golden wedding anniversary Sunday with a family dinner at the Wilard house, Homeworth.

During the afternoon and evening they kept open house at their home. The celebration was arranged by their children: Everett J. Rich, Mrs. L. L. McCluggage, and C. Fred Rich of Salem, and A. Gordon Rich of Massillon, who were all present for the occasion.

Steak Fry Concludes Club Program

The last meeting of the Music study club of the year was featured with a steak fry yesterday at Firestone park in Columbiana.

Mrs. J. F. Hunt, Mrs. Neil Knowlton and Miss Helen Dorius were appointed to serve on the program committee for next year, with a continuation of this year's study book.

Mrs. V. S. King gave a report of the current events of the Music Federation magazine.

A clever program was enjoyed in the form of a last day of school program with Mrs. Anthony Wolina as the "teacher". Members answered roll call with "nicknames".

The program included a vocal duet, "Sweetheart," by Mrs. L. D. Cessna and Mrs. J. Fitzpatrick, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Steven Odoran; a piano duet, "Chopsticks," by Mrs. E. E. Dyball and Mrs. E. T. Coyle; vocal selection, "When You Come to the End of a Perfect Day," by Mrs. King, accompanied by Mrs. Cessna.

Piano solo, "Minstrels," by Mrs. J. Hunt; group singing, "Long, Long Trail," led by Mrs. G. M. Brewin, accompanied by Mrs. Neil Knowlton; recitation, "The Little Girl Who Forgot," by Mrs. Charles Cornwall; comedy danced by Mrs. J. W. Astory, accompanied by Mrs. Odoran.

Short readings, Musical Menu, by Mrs. J. W. Hundertmark; recitation, "Breathless Recitation," by Mrs. Odoran; poem by Mrs. J. N. Hadjisky, a guest; piano solo, by Mrs. R. E. Griffin; dialogue by Mrs. Coyle and Mrs. Astory. The program was closed with group singing, "God Bless You Until We Meet Again," led by Mrs. Wolina.

The next meeting will be held Oct. 10.

Mrs. Lawrence Kaercher is Club Hostess.

Mrs. Lawrence Kaercher entertained members of the What Not club at dinner last evening at her home on W. Pershing st.

The dinner was served at an attractive table decorated with spring flowers. A theater party was enjoyed. Mrs. Harold Cose was welcomed as a new member.

Mrs. Harriet Harris will entertain the group June 7 at her home on S. Union ave.

OPA HIGH COMMAND IS STANDING FIRM

Sticking To Its Guns Despite Great Flood of Denunciations

WASHINGTON, May 25.—The high command of the Office of Price Administration stuck to its guns today through a bombardment of denunciation from businessmen, internal disputes, and proposals that it be stripped of its food pricing and rationing power.

Back on the job after a minor operation, Administrator Prentiss M. Brown defended his agency's $400,000,000 federal subsidy program to cut the price of meat, butter and coffee by 10 per cent at a closed hearing of the house appropriations committee yesterday.

Brown, seeking funds for the next fiscal year, supported OPA's system of community-wide dollars-and-cents price ceilings on food-stuffs, a system which was being roundly denounced in two other sessions on Capitol Hill.

The OPA chief asked for funds to pay 1,400 new inspectors to help combat black markets.

Brown denied there had been "mass resignations" in OPA's food price division. Later he issued a statement saying two resignations had been accepted as the result of "policy differences," and added there were resignations all the time.

"Some of them not altogether undesirable," four others, he said, had left previously for other reasons.

"The articles and rumors to the effect that there is to be a great change in personnel and authority are unfounded in fact," he declared.

Earlier informed sources in OPA said about eight officials had tendered resignations or were considering that step. Most of them were reported to feel their proposals for food price control had been ignored by the "lawyers and economists" who promulgated the present system which they charged was complicated, unenforceable, and in some cases inflationary.

Take the sting out of rationing with home-canned foods

Help bring Victory!

Berries are coming in

... use your Gas range to can them now for later use!

Your ration coupons can't begin to give you all the foods your family has been used to having. But home-canning can rescue you from this new dilemma. This year, of all years, it will be important to put up all possible fruits and vegetables for next fall and winter.

Right now, early berries are coming in—strawberries, cherries, early rhubarb. Plan to home-can as many of these as you are able to buy and prepare.

Your Gas range can be of real help... whether you preserve by hot water bath, pressure cooker or convenient oven-canning.

There's a new booklet out... issued by the Home Service department of your Gas company... the complete story on canning, drying and storage of fruits and vegetables. Your copy is waiting for you.

Remember, home-canning will enrich your family diet, save ration coupons, cut down your household food budget, and help to win the war. So start soon... with the berries!

Get your free copy of "HOME CANNING DRYING AND STORAGE OF FRUITS AND VEGETABLES."

Simply stop at your nearest Gas company office and ask for your copy now. Describes drying, to save jars—and storage, to save canning of some vegetables. Complete—practical—tested methods all explained.

AXIS PROPAGANDA PLANS PUNCTURED

Possible Results of Comintern Dissolution Are Studied

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

Moscow's announcement of the dissolution of the Communist International, or Comintern, is one of the momentous developments of the war—if it proves to mean what it seems to indicate now.

The Comintern, which was founded in 1919, long ago defined its mission as the "general staff of world revolution." That succinctly sums up its original mission—the spreading of Communism to other countries by creating revolts against their governments. It was the Comintern, with its agents and propaganda, which caused foreign nations, including Britain and the United States, to raise barriers of fear against Moscow.

The implication in the announcement is that Russia has formally disavowed any intention of trying to spread Communism by this method. Henceforth Communist parties in foreign countries aren't to look to the birthplace of Bolshevism for instructions.

Wait and See

Most observers, however, are inclined to regard this development as one of those puddings which are proved in the eating. Time will be a sure guide to whether the Red Comintern intends to confine its political activities to the home country.

One of the most sensational aspects of this move is that it seems calculated to leave Fuchser-Hiller stranded in the old swimming-hole without any clothes.

The bond (in theory) between the Axis powers and Japan is their anti-Comintern pact. Of course, the real tie is gangsterism, but anti-Communism is the white horse which Knight Hitler has been riding with spurs and whip.

The anti-Comintern pact was signed by Germany and Japan in 1936, and Italy subscribed to it the next year. This alliance declared that the Communist International aimed at breaking up all existing states. The Nazi chief has been depending heavily on this propaganda, right up to the moment of Moscow's surprise announcement.

Berlin and Rome appeared to be flabbergasted when the news broke from Moscow at the weekend. It certainly put them on a nasty spot from which they may have extreme difficulty in escaping.

Backed By Trotsky

The Comintern was created as a Communist party institution with the idea of taking advantage of the widespread disorganization produced by the first World War to establish Communism around the globe by causing a general revolt against established governments. One of the chief exponents of this scheme was the late Leon Trotsky, who hoped to be successor to Lenin.

When Lenin died in 1924, however, it wasn't Trotsky but Stalin who came to power. Stalin took the position that Russia's first aim should be not world revolution but development of industrial strength at home. He therefore quietly shelved Trotsky's dream and a little later inaugurated the industrialization which has been so amazingly successful. The fiery Trotsky was expelled, and finally wound up in Mexico where he was assassinated.

However, the Comintern continued to function vigorously and Communist parties in other countries looked to it for direction and orders. Foreign governments fought the propaganda and wondered anxiously whether Stalin would take the idea of world revolution down from the shelf and dust it off when the time seemed right, that is, when the world was again disorganized by war.

Observers hold that most of the suspicion and distrust of Moscow by foreign countries has been due to this fear of Communism being thrust upon them. Now we have this new Red announcement, which ostensibly is calculated to remove the distrust and pave the way for unity of view among the Allies, both as regards the war effort and post-war reconstruction.

If things turn out that way it may prevent another world upheaval after we have finished with Hitler et al. One is reminded of Vice President Wallace's recent sensational statement:

"Unless the western democracies and Russia come to a satisfactory understanding before the war ends, I very much fear that World War No. 3 will be inevitable."

DEMOCRATS SEEK TAX BILL BREAK

Call for Superhuman Efforts to Get Out Acceptable Program

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 25—A Democratic determination to "get a bill" cast some faint rays of hope today over the muddled conferences in which house and senate members are striving to compose their differences on pay-as-you-go tax legislation.

Admittedly still deadlocked within their own ranks, some of the Democrats called for superhuman efforts to evolve a program acceptable to both houses and to the President.

One of these, Senator Byrd (D-Va.) said he thought it would be "a bad thing" for the country if the conferees gave up trying, as some were reported to have suggested doing at a closed session yesterday.

"Pay-as-you-go tax legislation has aroused more interest in the country than any domestic legislation in the last 10 years," Byrd declared. On the other hand, Senator Walsh (D-Mass.), a supporter of the modified Ruml skip a year measure passed by the senate, said the deadlock "looks hopeless" to him.

Byrd's viewpoint, however, was reported to be shared by Chairman George (D-Ga.) of the senate finance committee and Doughton (D-NC) of the house ways and means committee, both of whom appeared more optimistic despite failure of the Democrats to agree even among themselves.

A revised compromise proposal which would abate the first $100 of everybody's taxes (clearing 9,000,000 persons of all back taxes) and require payment of 25 per cent of the remainder of either 1942 or 1943 taxes, whichever is lesser, was before the group today.

The President is reported to have let it be known thus far that he would sign the house-approved bill, which would abate the 6 per cent normal and 13 per cent first bracket surtax on 1942 incomes, but has gone no further.

DECISION SOUGHT IN COAL DISPUTE

May Throw Portal-to-Portal Demand Back To Bargaining

WASHINGTON, May 25—The war labor board, aiming at a decision late today in the soft coal wage dispute, may throw the miners' portal-to-portal pay demand back into collective bargaining. Some members favor such action.

Authoritative sources indicated the board was prepared to grant the miners concessions in the form of higher vacation pay, and elimination of occupational charges, such as rental of their electric cap lamps and purchase of certain tools. In addition, certain provisions may be ordered to give the miners better assurances of a full six-day week. At present they receive time and a half on Saturdays only if they work all five preceding days. Sometimes they are idle on one or more of these days for reasons beyond their control.

The operators, critical of the report of the fact-finding panel, asked the board to hear oral argument, but it is understood the board is not sympathetic to any further delays. The board officially reported that no action was taken on the operators' request.

The panel, which made its report last Friday, said the portal-to-portal pay demand was an ideal subject for collective bargaining.

Both operators and miners concede the practical effect of portal-to-portal pay order is fraught with ambiguities and legal applications, and for that reason some board members, at least, believe the problems could be worked out best in negotiations. Treasury officials confirmed yesterday that they have approved salary increases for thousands of mine supervisory employees. The raises amount to $35 to $40 a month, they said.

Court To Suspend

LISBON, May 25—Monday will be observed as a legal holiday by all Columbiana county courthouse offices which will be closed for the day, commissioners said today.

There was no picketing or disorder. Extra details of police were on duty.

The transit company spokesman said that bus lines were running about 50 per cent of normal and street cars about 85 per cent.

Transportation Hit

BALTIMORE, May 25—Baltimore's war-crowded transportation system, burdened by a critical shortage of gasoline for private cars and taxis, was disrupted today by a partial walkout of AFL-affiliated union employees.

There was no picketing or disorder. Extra details of police were on duty.

The transit company spokesman said that bus lines were running about 50 per cent of normal and street cars about 85 per cent.

Reds, Cubs Being Used As Doormats By Other Clubs

NATIONAL LEAGUE SITUATION IS NOT EXPECTED TO LAST

Bruins Right Now Are In Cellar; Reds' Hitting Fails to Produce

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

With the major leagues getting ready to resume action tomorrow with their second round of inter-sectional firing, the question that has everybody puzzled is how long can the other National league clubs continue to trample on the Cincinnati Reds and Chicago Cubs.

The Bruins have impressed every rival manager as one of the stand-out teams in the senior circuit. Yet they are deep in the cellar.

A siege of illness and injuries has cut into the club's general effectiveness, no doubt, but on the basis of the records it is hard to see how the Cubs lost nine straight in the east.

Novikoff In Uniform

They will be joined by Lou Novikoff, their celebrated holdout, when they open a home stand tomorrow against the New York Giants, who are in seventh place. The combination of Novikoff and Wrigley field may put them on the upgrade.

Cincinnati's predicament is almost equally puzzling. The Reds' pitching has been as good as expected and the hitting has been better than Manager Bill McKechnie dared hope. As a club only the Dodgers are hitting higher. Yet in two games last weekend the Reds left 24 runners stranded.

At Boston Johnny Vander Meer pitched a two-hitter and was beaten and the next day Bucky Walters lost a four-hitter.

At present the only thing familiar about the National league standings is the battle between Brooklyn and the St. Louis Cardinals for first place.

The Boston Braves and Philadelphia Phillies, who have held on to the other berths in the first division will be put to strenuous tests in their first swing through the west.

Besides New York at Chicago, the series opening tomorrow in the National league will call for Boston at St. Louis and Philadelphia at Cincinnati in a pair of night games and Brooklyn at Pittsburgh.

In the American league the eastern clubs will be at home with Cleveland at Boston, Chicago at Philadelphia, Detroit at New York and St. Louis at Washington in a night game.

The question here will be whether the Indians, usually not as formidable on the road as at home, retain the American league lead they grabbed from the Yankees Sunday at Cleveland.

Tennis Tournament Hopes Are Revived

NEW YORK, May 25. — Having passed through the stage of wartime uncertainty, tennis officials feel that they know where they're going this year. It isn't very far along the familiar peacetime tournament trail, but it is far enough to afford considerable satisfaction to all concerned.

"No decision has been made about holding the national championships at Forest Hills, but they will be held if they don't interfere with the war," says President Holcombe Ward of the United States Lawn Tennis association. Then he adds hopefully, "I don't see how they can interfere. Tentative arrangements have been made with the West Side Tennis club at Forest Hills and a definite decision will be reached after a committee consults army, navy and ODT officials in Washington."

One-sixth of New Zealand's population is under arms.

Busted Dream

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—Under normal conditions Notre Dame would have a powerful basketball team back for the 1943-44 season. Only three members of the squad will be lost by graduation.

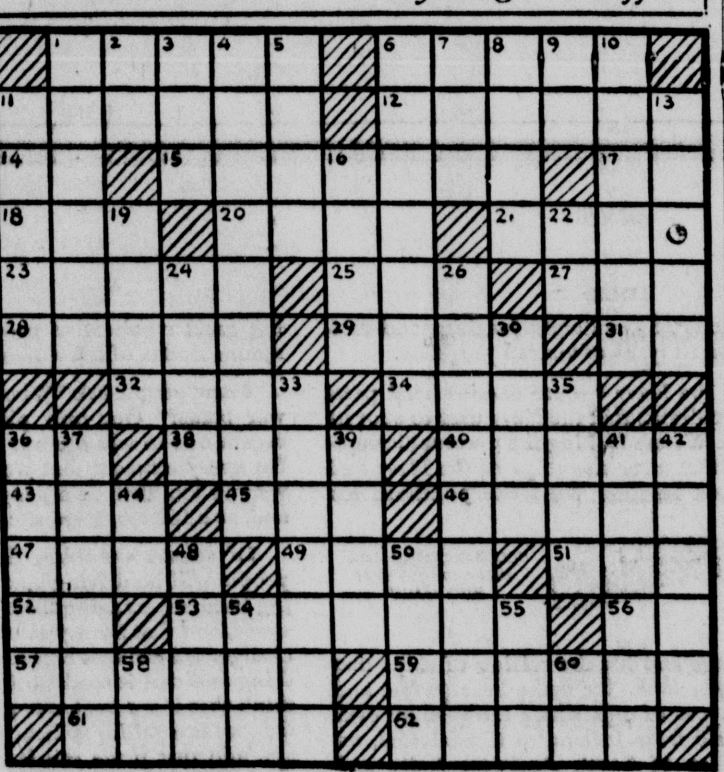

With the loss of Capt. Charles Butler, Bob Rensberger and Ralph Vinciguerra, the team will still have high scoring Bob Faught, John Niemi, Frank Curran, Tom Brennan and Orlando Bonicelli.

However, there is a little matter of the war which may completely wash out Coach "Moose" Krause's dreams for next season.

All-Around Man

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—Bill Boss, senior manager of the 1943 Notre Dame football team, is a jack-of-all-trades on the Irish campus. Besides his football activities, Boss is sports editor of the Notre Dame Scholastic, campus news weekly, sports-caster on a weekly campus radio show, member of a Notre Dame dramatic group and one of the leaders in the recent promotion of victory garden at Notre Dame. Besides all of this he is regarded as a student of no mean ability.

SCHEDULE FLAG TOURNAMENT AS SEASON OPENER

First Contest At Salem Golf Course Sunday; Others Listed

A flag tournament next Sunday, Memorial day, will open the season's special events at the Salem Golf club, N. I. Walken, chairman of the men's golf committee, announced today.

One war relief tournament is on the schedule for Aug. 8, but the committee has not determined what kind of a contest this will be, nor for what particular fund. It is possible another war relief contest may be held before that date, depending upon request of the P. G. A.

While the Salem course has been getting some play for several weeks, most of the members are expected to get started during the coming week-end.

Qualifying rounds for the President's trophy contest will get started Saturday, and continue Sunday and Monday and the following Wednesday, June 2. This will be 18 holes medal play with full handicaps, the 15 lowest to qualify in each of two grades.

The first matches must be played on or before June 13, the second round by June 20, the third by June 27. The finals, of 36 holes, must be completed by July 7.

Other contests scheduled to date are:

Sunday, June 6—Blind handicap tournament.

Sunday, June 13—Match play against par with full handicaps.

Sunday, June 20—18 holes medal play, full handicap.

Sunday, June 27—Two-man team contest. One half of handicap, individually applied. Best ball.

Sunday, July 4—Flag tournament.

Qualifying rounds for the club championship will be played July 3, 4, 5, and 7. This is an 18-hole medal play event with no handicaps, 16 to qualify in each group. First match must be completed by July 18, second by July 25, third by Aug. 1, and the finals, 36 holes, by Aug. 8.

Sunday, July 11—Men's foursome. Choose your partners. Total score less total handicap.

Sunday, July 18—18 holes match play against par. Full handicap, limit one stroke on each hole.

Sunday, July 25—Handicap medal play. Nine selected blind holes. One-half handicap.

Sunday, Aug. 1—Four ball-best ball tournament. Choose your partners. One half handicap.

Sunday, Aug. 8—Qualify for war relief tournament. Full handicap, 18 holes medal play.

The contest committee includes N. I. Walken, chairman; Joe M. Kelley, vice chairman; Dr. F. R. Crowe, Dr. R. T. Holzbach, Robert L. Wright, Walter L. Strain, James W. Farrell.

A Real Soldier

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—Frank Lombardo, New York City boxer who was defeated in the finals of the University of Notre Dame boxing championships, showed a real love for the sport and the championship bouts when he decided to stick around until the show was over.

A few days before the start of the championships, Lombardo was notified by his draft board he was to be called into the army within ten days, but he didn't leave for home until the final blow had been struck in the finals. Lombardo was rewarded with the individual sportsmanship trophy.

Now Retired

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—Billy Sullivan, former catcher for the Brooklyn Dodgers and the last Notre Dame graduate left in the major leagues, has temporarily retired from baseball and is now in the construction business in Florida.

This leaves Ed Hanysewski, right handed pitcher for the Chicago Cubs, the sole Notre Dame representative in the big leagues. Hanysewski spent his freshman year at Notre Dame and then signed a contract with the Cubs.

Fight Results

PHILADELPHIA—Henry Armstrong, 140½, Los Angeles, stopped Maxie Shapiro, 135, New York (7).

CHICAGO—Tommy Bell, 150½, Detroit outpointed Willie Russell, 147, Columbus, Ohio (8).

SPORT CHATTER

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

NEW YORK, May 25.—The democratic game of tennis. . . Sounds kind of funny, doesn't it? But that's one of the things they try to impress on you at the U. S. Lawn Tennis association offices these days.

"Tennis," says Preky Holcombe Ward, "has come a long way since the old Newport days."

... And what Ward wants is for more kids to learn the game, no matter which side of the tracks they live on. "We're trying to encourage public parks play and to persuade high schools to engage competent coaches, not only for teams but to teach the boys and girls the right way to hit the ball and how to place their feet."

BIGGER GAME

(News Item: Long Island war league baseball game postponed because of rush order in plant.)

No baseball fan would be such a jerk as to kick when he hears: "Game Off—War Work."

ONE-MINUTE SPORTS PAGE

The Yankees drew 62,742 cash customers during their two weeks in the west, or about as many as they used to get for a Sunday double-header at the stadium when they were going good. . . Bob Plaxico, the Canton, O., reinsman, has enlarged his stable of harness horses to 26 and figures to have a big season, since many rivals are cutting down because of the shortage of grooms.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

W. N. Cox, Norfolk Virginian-Pilot: "What's wrong with this sentence: Maybe Lefty Gomez will be lucky enough to catch on with the Phillies? . . . This is it, the situation that proves the baseball world is going up and down something like the elevators in a Marx brothers comedy."

SUMMER BOWLING LOOP IS PLANNED

Salem's feminine kegglers will attempt to organize a summer league at a meeting at 8 p. m. Wednesday at the new alleys, E. Pershing st. and S. Lundy ave.

Sponsors of the proposed loop point out that if women bowlers do not show sufficient interest in the summer circuit, there just won't be any. And tomorrow night, they emphasize, is the time to show that interest, by attending the meeting or indicating that they want to bowl.

Browns' Chartak Would Shed No Tears If Yankees Lose

CHICAGO—If the St. Louis Browns win the American league championship, a Browns outfielder would be the last one to shed any crocodile tears over the dethroning of the New York Yankees.

The outfielder in question would be Mike Chartak, long a chattel of the far-flung Yankee farm system. In fact, Chartak, who bids fair to become the sparkplug of the St. Louis offensive attack, would welcome a chance to win the league title single-handed for his new employers.

NATIONAL LEAGUE BATTERS AT TOP

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, May 25.—Both major leagues are using the same type of ball these days but the National league's batting averages are continuing to surpass the marks set in the American league, one-time home of the sluggers.

Vernon Stephens of the St. Louis Browns, who has been out of action for approximately a week because of an injured knee, has the highest average in either league with .388 and Michael (Pinky) Higgins of the Detroit Tigers is second, 10 points behind.

But aside from this pair the hitters in the senior circuit are having all the best of the balata ball. Billy Herman of the Brooklyn Dodgers has moved into first place with .356 and the tenth man is Stan Hack of the Chicago Cubs with .308.

In the American league there are only eight batters hitting .300 or better and to get a list of 10 leading hitters it is necessary to include Rip Radcliff of Detroit with a .290 mark.

National league clouters have come up with 54 home runs, 29 more than have been hit in the American league.

"Tippy" Dye Joins U. S. Navy Today

COLUMBUS, May 25.—Ohio State university's baseball squad, currently leading the Western conference championship race, loses its coach today to the armed services.

"Tippy" Dye, the former Ohio State football, basketball and baseball star who replaced Diamond Coach Fritz Mackey temporarily this season, reports at Chapel Hill, N. C., as a naval ensign.

Dye's baseballers have won four and lost one in the conference and need but one more victory out of a two-game series scheduled with Purdue June 11 and 12 to cop the Big Ten crown.

The Bucks now own a game and a half lead over Wisconsin and Illinois, both of whom have concluded their seasons and are tied for second place.

JAPANESE LOSE 12 PLANES AT ATTU

Navy Amplifies Original Report On Aleutians Battle

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, May 25.—The Navy reported today that seven out of 16 Japanese twin engine bombers which had ventured into the Attu battle area Sunday were "probably destroyed," in addition to five originally reported as "definitely destroyed."

Amplifying yesterday's report on the air flight which occurred over the western Aleutian island when six army Lightning fighters intercepted the bomber formation, a navy communique declared that the remaining four enemy bombers which were apparently unharmed fled to the west without doing any damage to American ships or positions.

Prior to issuance of the communique, which covered only operations on Attu through Sunday, Secretary of the Navy Knox reported that the battle on the island was continuing with the Japanese "coraled" on the peninsula which juts out along the island's north-eastern rim.

The secretary told a press conference he had no fresh information to add to yesterday's communique which said the pressure of American soldiers against pockets of Japanese resistance on Attu was continuing and that a number of enemy points of resistance had been liquidated.

"The fighting is continuing," Knox said. "We have those men corralled out there on the peninsula."

Asked the origin of the 15 enemy

twin-engine bombers which raided American forces in the Attu area Saturday and the 16 which participated in a raid Sunday, Knox said "We don't know where the planes came from."

"A suspicion is that came from the Kuriles," the secretary added.

Asked whether any reports had come in to show that the airfield project initiated by the Japanese on Attu was feasible, Knox said no reports had arrived.

The enemy had made considerable progress in leveling a flight strip when the American invasion began two weeks ago today.

Among the forces on the Aleutians island, Knox disclosed, is a group of "Sea Bees" navy construction men whose job it is to begin development of an island almost as soon as the first wave of American combat troops land.

He characterized as another fishing expedition Japanese claims to having sunk American ships in the western Aleutians.

SENATE APPROVES 'SHARE-RIDE' BILL

Stephenson Measure, Passed 24-6, Is Dispatched To Ohio House

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, May 25.—Legislation exempting "share-a-ride" automobile drivers from responsibility for the safety of their passengers went to the Ohio house of representatives today after receiving the senate's approval.

There was speculation, meanwhile, over whether it might be lost in the legislature's drive to complete its work this week. It is customary to give a bill at least two committee hearings and this usually requires a week.

Frank E. Whittemore, Republican floor leader in the senate, said his branch would work through Saturday, if necessary, to wind up its activities. The house leadership, however, indicated its working sessions would be extended into next week if the chores could not be completed Friday.

The share-the-ride bill, drafted as an emergency measure to become effective immediately upon its signature by the governor, was passed by the senate last night, 24 to 6.

"Real War Measure"
Senator John Stephenson (R., Columbus), the author, said it was a "real war measure, seriously needed" because share-the-ride programs had been discouraged by a recent decision of the Ohio supreme court holding motorists in such programs liable for the welfare of their passengers.

The Stephenson bill, however, would not excuse a driver's negligence or recklessness.

The senate went on record in favor of limit to the power of Congress to tax incomes, inheritance and gifts more than 25 per cent. It adopted and sent to the house a joint resolution recommending adoption of a federal constitutional amendment to this effect.

The senate upheld, 20 to 11, Gov. John W. Bricker's veto of a bill exempting bartenders from responsibility for sale of beer and liquor to minors.

The governor said the bill would be an incentive to perjury.

The senate approved a senate conference committee's report on legislation authorizing the state highway director to keep secret his engineer's estimate of project costs.

The house judiciary committee recommended passage of a senate-approved bill imposing an unemployment insurance surtax not to exceed 1 per cent on the payrolls of

DAMAGE IN FLOOD AREAS IS MOUNTING

Further Disasters Threaten In Hard-Hit Illinois and Missouri

(By Associated Press)
The Mississippi and the smaller but unruly Illinois rivers—continuing their devastating course over a wide section—today threatened further disaster to an already flood-stricken section of Illinois and Missouri.

DOG WARDEN'S AID NAMED BY COUNTY

LISBON, May 25.—County commissioners today appointed A. R. McKown of Lisbon as assistant to County Dog Warden L. J. Stark for an intensified campaign against strays and unlicensed dogs in the county. The temporary appointment carries a salary of $125 per month.

Since the first of April Stark has conducted a successful drive on unlicensed dogs and has picked up approximately 100 canines, exclusive of dogs killed within the cities.

Commissioners also studied a request by Sheriff George Hayes for additional funds for the employment of an extra man for road patrol work at night in an effort to cut down petty thievery over the county.

Continue Air Raids

LONDON, May 25.—A strong force of Allied warplanes headed eastward across the channel this morning to resume by daylight the Allied offensive which reached its peak Sunday night in a record-breaking RAF assault on Dortmund.

The course followed by the daylight raiders indicated they would hit the French coast somewhere between Dieppe and Boulogne.

RAF fighters were over northern France on small-scale intruder patrols, during the night, but the British heavy bombers were given a rest after their 2,000-ton attack on Dortmund.

Bus Drivers Strike

UTICA, N. Y., May 25.—Bus drivers and mechanics of the New York State Railways, Inc., went on strike at 4 a. m. today, virtually paralyzing transportation in this industrial city.

CHINA IS FACING CHUNGKING-THREAT

at the eastern entrance of the Yangtze gorges. West of this city are mountains through which the mighty river has cut the world-famous gorge that in some places is 2,000 feet deep in solid rock.

The gorge and the surrounding mountains provide strong defenses against invasion. True, the rapids of the Yangtze can be negotiated by powerful river steamers which are built for these shallow, tumbling waters. Junks also are towed up to Chungking, as for generations past, by coolies.

Not Easy For Army
I've seen these river workers towing junks on the Yangtze at Chungking, straining in their rope harness, so terrifically that they were all but prostrate on the shore and kept themselves up by using their hands as feet. To me it was a terrible sight. However, sentiment aside, the point is that the Yangtze gorges aren't adapted to the easy passage of an army.

Meager reports of the fighting indicate that the Japs may be calculating on driving westward to the south of the Yangtze in an effort to reach Chungking. They also are operating to the north of Ichang, which might represent an effort to get at the capital by a route north of the Yangtze. Yesterday's Chinese communique reported a successful counter-attack against the Japs in this latter zone.

Of course, General Chiang still has a vast hinterland into which he could retire with his government and his armies. However, he would be leading his people out into a comparative wilderness. Thus it is essential that Chungking and the agricultural areas in neighboring territory be held. It's close by a possible to move heavy land equipment into China these days, with the Burma road closed.

Virtually everything has to be ferried by air.

For this reason one would assume that if the Japanese offensive should develop adversely, the Allies would rush air power to the aid of Chiang. Our own 14th U. S. Air Force under Major General Chennault continues to do a grand job for the Chinese.

WHITLOCK NAMED INSTITUTE CHIEF

NEW YORK, May 25.—George W. Whitlock, president of the Mullins Mfg. Corp., was named president of the Pressed Metal Institute, founded yesterday.

The institute will cooperate with governmental departments to speed up and increase mass production of war materials and develop new uses for metal stampings after the war, Whitlock announced.
